PREVENTION NETWORK HIRES NEW SPECIALIST

Syracuse, NY—Prevention Network announced today that it has hired a new treatment specialist. Beth Hurny joined the agency staff as Director of Youth and Parenting Services. In her new position, Ms. Hurny will oversee programs and services for youth, teens, parents and families. She served until recently as Program Director of the Syracuse Behavioral Healthcare Evaluation Center.

Ms. Hurny received a Bachelor of Science degree in human services from Cornell University and a Masters of Social Work degree from Syracuse University. She is a resident of Syracuse.

Her photograph is attached.

Prevention Network is a not-for-profit agency that educates, trains, and provides prevention information pertaining to substance use, abuse, and addictions to the Central New York community. For over 50 years, the agency has assisted individuals, families, schools and businesses through helpful information and training, anonymous referrals, and support services to assure positive outcomes.
